Talking about different career paths into Academia

— •ALEXANDER OSTERKORN¹, CHRISTOPH KASTL², ANNA GRÜNEBOHM², and AMELIE HEUER-JUNGEMANN² — ¹jDPG — ²AGyouLeaP

On the way to a position in academia, nowadays several career paths are available. After the PhD, people usually go through a PostDoc phase and then take the next qualification step. For the latter, besides the more established Habilitation, one can become for example a Junior-Professor or an independent group leader funded by third-party funding like an Emmy-Noether fellowship. We want to discuss with people who followed these different career paths about their experiences and viewpoints on their career path. The panel discussion will be moderated by Alexander Osterkorn from jDPG and on the panel we are happy to welcome the AGyouLeaP members Christoph Kastl (Habilitation, TU München), Anna Grünebohm (Junior-Professor, Ruhr-Universität Bochum) and Amelie Heuer-Jungemann (Emmy-Noether Group Leader, Max-Planck Institut für Biochemie).
